

Directed Study courses are active courses, listed in the academic catalog, and taught on an individual basis by a full-time instructor at the same level as regularly scheduled courses.

The Directed Study option can be utilized only in unusual circumstances and is not an alternative to inadequate planning or inconvenient timing. It is expected that instructors who normally teach the course will teach a course via directed study. Regular tuition and fees will be charged for every directed study credit. Registration must be completed within the first two weeks of the semester.

Process:

1. The student requesting a Directed Study meets with his or her advisor to explore alternatives. If none are feasible, the student and the advisor complete and sign this form.
2. The student and advisor contact the faculty member to see if the instructor is willing to teach the course via directed study. If so, then the instructor signs this form and outlines the expectations for the course with the student to make sure completion is feasible and the student understands what will be expected.
3. The instructor obtains the Division Chair’s signature and returns this form to the advisor.
4. The advisor discusses the request with the Vice President of Academic and Student Affairs, who approves or denies the request.

If approved: The VP signs this form and Academic Affairs processes the request. The advisor informs the student that the request was approved and instructs the student to wait 24 hours before registering for the course.

If denied: The advisor informs the student.
